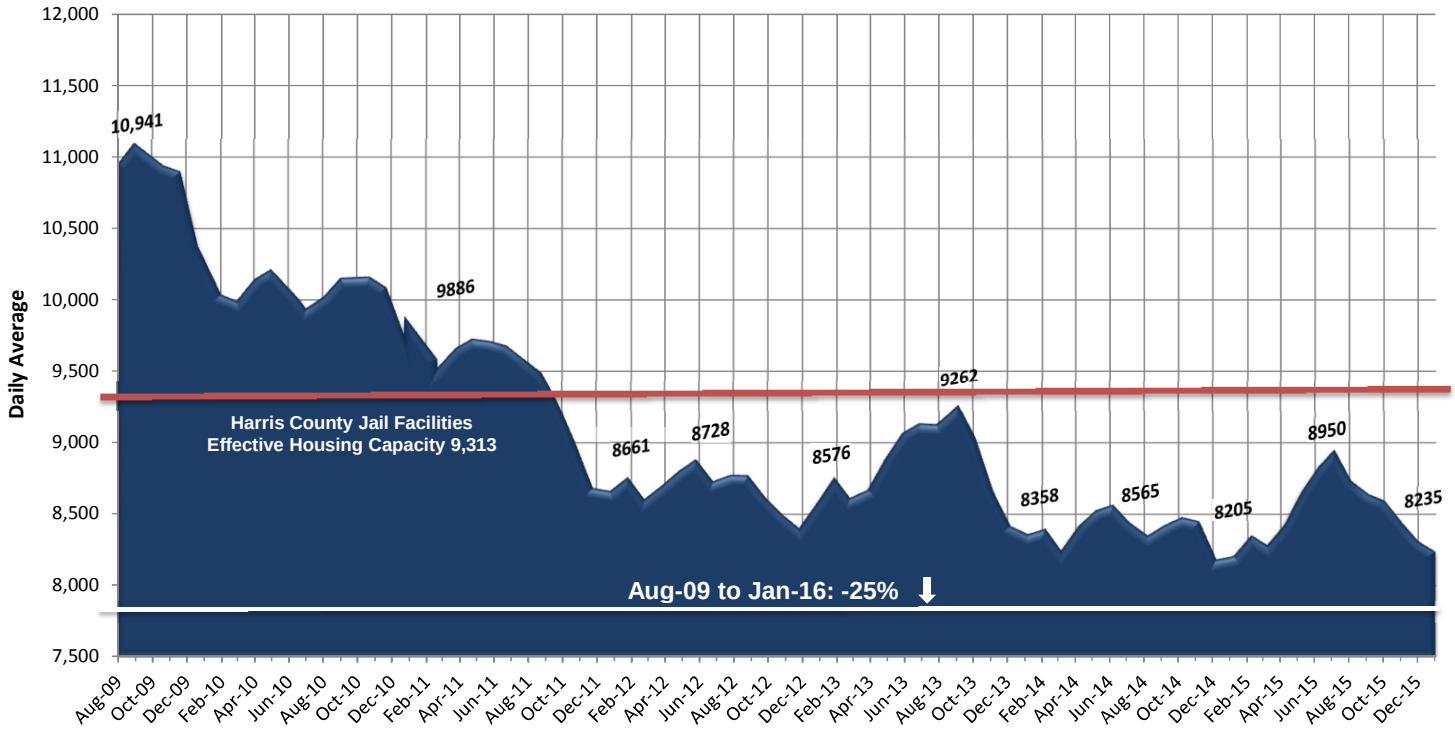
[2] Effective Housing Capacity is equivalent to 93% of the total number of beds available. At any given time, seven percent of beds are unavailable due to classification issues, repairs, construction, etc. thus preventing 100% utilization of all beds in the facility.

[3] As of November 6, 2014 the number of approved variance beds was reduced from 680 to 580 beds.

Total Inmates Housed



Observations

In January 2016 the average daily jail population housed stood at 8,235, a decline of 73 persons from last month. In 2015, the population peaked in July at 8,950 inmates which was the highest level since October 2013. Reductions in probationers and post-adjudicated county and state prisoners were offset by an increase in pretrial detainees and non-Harris County prisoners.

The average daily jail population housed is down 25% from the first meeting of the Council in September 2009 when the population totaled 10,941 inmates, which was 16% over design capacity and 7% over TCJS approved capacity. Including approved variance beds, the average daily jail population housed for January of 8,235 was 11.6% below the effective housing capacity. Without the use of variance beds, average daily jail population housed was 6.1% below effective housing capacity.

Pretrial detainees represent 78% (6,718 persons) of the total jail population, up slightly from the previous month and 7% higher (434 persons) than one year ago. The pretrial state jail felony detainee population declined to 1,094 persons, 2% fewer (18 persons) than one year ago. The number of pretrial felony detainees (excluding state jail felonies) rose by 137 persons from last month, an 8% increase from one year ago. The misdemeanor pretrial detainee population increased slightly from last month and is 14% higher (60 persons) than one year ago.

The number of probationers with no pending charges declined 14% from last month to 311 persons, essentially the same as one year ago.

Post-adjudicated County prisoners represent 8% of the total jail population, down slightly from last month to 640 persons. This category is down 23% (188 persons) from one year ago due to fewer 12.44a state jail felons serving time locally. 472 persons or 6% of the total population are post-adjudicated prisoners sentenced to TDC or state jail, down 31% (217 persons) from one year ago.

The number of parole violators and non-Harris County prisoners increased 8% from last month, a 24% (68 persons) increase from one year ago.

The number of inmates awaiting transfer to TDCJ-ID (i.e. Paper Ready) averaged 252, down 40% from one year ago.

In January 2016, 27% (2,191 persons) of the average daily jail population housed had a mental health history (previously diagnosed or prescribed psychotropic medication). 803 of these 2,191 had either self-identified as being homeless or had received homeless services in the community prior to incarceration. An additional 12% (976 persons) of the average daily jail population housed met the same homeless criteria.

Note: Fluctuation in the jail population as reported here is influenced by a variety of factors such as the number of cases filed, the number of people who are released on bond, the length of time to complete a case, holds placed on Harris County inmates by other jurisdictions, length of sentences handed down, the effect of early release programs, parole board processing of cases, and the list goes on. The changes observed in the jail population categories from month to month are impacted by any number of these factors and cannot be attributed to a single cause and effect.

Note: Effective Housing Capacity is equivalent to 93% of the total number of beds available. At any given time, approximately seven percent of beds are unavailable due to classification issues, repairs, construction, etc. thus preventing 100% utilization of all beds in the facility. The Texas Commission on Jail Standards (TCJS) has approved the use of 580 variance beds in the Harris County Jail. When this additional capacity is added to the design capacity, the total number of beds rises to 10,014, but 7% (701 beds) must be subtracted from this number to determine the effective housing capacity which is 9,313. (The number of variance beds is subject to periodic review by TCJS.)
